Preserving Eggs.

A Few Rules That Are Worthy of Notice and Consideration.

Although there are dozens of methods for preserving eggs, yet but few of them are worthy of notice. Limed eggs have been almost unsalable this year, and the lime method will soon be discarded. We give below a few rules that will enable our readers to preserve eggs in a good condition for at least three months, though eggs have been kept as long as six months by the process.

1. Always use fresh eggs, and do not rely on those from your neighbor. You must know that every egg is fresh, as one stale egg may injure all.

2. Use eggs only from hens not in company with cocks, as such eggs will keep three times as long as those containing germs of chicks.

3. Keep them in a cool place—the cooler the better. Anywhere near forty degrees, above zero, will answer, though sixty degrees will be cool enough for a few months. Only be careful that eggs do not freeze.

4. Turn them half over three times a week, to prevent them from adhering to the shells. The turning of the eggs is very important, and is one of the secrets of success.

5. No packing material is necessary. Simply lay them on racks or shelves; though, if preferred, they may be packed in boxes, in dry oats, and the boxes turned.

6. Solutions, grossing the eggs, egg-preserving preparations, etc., are unnecessary, as some of them injure the appearance of the eggs.

7. Wash every egg clean before placing it with the others.

If the above rules are followed there will be no differences between eggs so preserved and those that are fresh. No person can succeed in preserving eggs who buys them from all sources, and who does not know just when, every egg was laid, and it is on that point that so many failures occur. You can not place any dependence on eggs except from your own hens. Even your neighbor is sometimes unable to prevent getting a stale egg in among the fresh ones. Never use stale eggs as nest eggs, or allow sitting hens to be in the room with your layers. The greatest care should be exercised, and the eggs kept always cool.—Farm and Fireside.

A farmer in Corinth, Mo., set a steel trap on one end of a long pole and fastened it to a tall tree, much frequented by the birds of prey of the neighborhood, arranging it so that the trap was a little higher than the tree, thus forming a tempting perch for the birds. The net results were nine hawks, three owls, and one crow.

TREES ON POOR LAND.

Why Farmers Need Not Expect Any Extraordinary Returns From Them. Much has been written during the past few years in advocacy of planting trees designed to furnish timber, posts and fuel on land so poor that it is of no value for producing crops. Farmers have been reminded that the pine, larch and hemlock are often found on land where nothing else will grow. Their attention is also called to the fact that rocky hills are generally covered with maple, beech, birch and hickory trees. They, too, are informed that the swamp oak, American larch, willow and poplar do best on land that is too wet to plow or even to produce good grass. The impression is given in various ways that timber trees do not do well on land that is rich enough to produce corn, potatoes, and the various kinds of small grains. Most of the first settlers on the prairies were of the opinion that common forest trees would not grow on them. They found them treeless, but they saw trees of various kinds on the elevations in the vicinity and along the water courses. They came to the conclusion that prairie soil was too rich for forest trees.

It is true that the sand pines and larches of Michigan were covered with pines and other kinds of evergreen trees. So was the almost barren soil in many parts of New England and the Southern States. Almost all the mountain ranges in the country are covered with trees of some sort. Much of the low land in the South is occupied by cypress trees, while cedar and tamarack trees grow in swamps in many parts of the North. It is true, however, that these locations and these sorts of soil are the best for them. They flourish not because their conditions are the most favorable to them, but for the reasons that they can adapt themselves to unfavorable conditions and make the best of them. They show that they can make a brave struggle for existence and can succeed in spite of very unfavorable circumstances. They do not indicate the best places to plant trees to insure the largest or the quickest growth. In many cases they simply show that the stones, barren soil, or moisture, have provoked their being destroyed by fire.

Persons who see trees of considerable size on sandy plains or rocky hillsides or in swamps do not consider how long it took them to attain their growth. Many of them, in all probability, were growing and were of considerable size when the continent was discovered by Columbus. There is no perceptible change in their height or circumference during a decade. They do not pass from large to small trees during the lifetime of a man nor during a century. One of these trees represents the slow growth made during many generations of men. It may be well to set out trees on unsightly portions of land to which no manure has been applied and which has never been prepared for planting. But the planter should not expect that the trees will make a rapid growth or that he will derive any pecuniary benefit from them. The most that can reasonably be expected from them is that they will cover the nakedness of the land so that the owner will not be ashamed of it.—Chicago Times.

—Those farmers scattered everywhere all over the land, who would be lost in independent circumstances to-day, instead of tilling and fretting around, trying to lift the mortgages on their farms, if they had adopted more system and method in their work, and therefore stopped the little leeks that have kept them behind, and always will. There must be system about the farm if we would have every thing run almost smoothly, without a jar or strain. In other words, there must be a place for every thing and every thing must be kept in its place.—Ohio Farmer.

COTTON-STALK PULP.

A Description of the Process Employed in Its Manufacture.

For several weeks there have been on exhibition in the office of the clerk of the Supreme Court samples of pulp made of the hulls and stalks of the cotton plant. The pulp is as white as snow, and can be converted into the finest writing paper. It is regarded as valuable, and is the product of parts of the cotton plant hitherto deemed valueless.

The process by which it is made is now. It is a process by which the lignous substances of the hulls and seeds are dissolved. By this process over 50 per cent. of the fiber is extracted from the hulls, which have been regarded as fit only for fuel in the mills, or for feed and fertilizing purposes, and which were sold for $1 a ton. These, converted into pulp, will be worth $10 a ton. From the stalks usually left to rot in the fields, dark in color with legs near the head, he prefers the heads of chicks, and sticks close to his victim. He does not like grease, and a mixture of lard three parts, crude petroleum one part, and carbolic acid one-tenth part, rubbed on the head, around the vent, with a drop under the throat, and a good dusting of Persian insect powder is more than his constitution will endure, and he quickly succumbs or leaves.

FACTS FOR FARMERS.

—Farmers who must have hired men to help them in their farm work ought not to forget their overworked wives. There is as much need of extra workers in the kitchen as on the farm.

—Country boys ought to be taught the use and value of money. Many a farmer's boy is growing up to manhood with no knowledge of business, but little education and self-reliance. Such young men will be ill prepared to enter into the active business pursuits of life.

—There are two things a farmer can never have enough of: One is feed, the other is manure. Feed obviously, manure, for it enables the farmer to keep more cattle, and some can always be purchased cheaply in the fall or winter, and make a good profit on the feed.

—To secure a good crop of grain it is fully as necessary as with any other crop, that good care be taken to have the soil reasonably rich and well prepared before sowing the seed. It is quite a serious error to work upon the soil that is too poor to plant to any other crop can be sown down.

—An domestic animal understands and appreciates kind treatment. It is no good to say they are "only dumb brutes." If we treat them as talk, but, like dumb or blind men, their intelligence in other respects is doubtful. You can make friends of all your animals if you take the trouble to do so.

—All grass crops make the best hay if cut before the seed-heads form. When a plant produces seed it has performed its mission and stored much of its nutritive matter in the seed. To secure the largest amount of nutrition in hay the grass should be cut while the stalks and blades contain the elements that would otherwise be directed to the formation of seed.

—When stock is turned on the pasture and there left all day, the water supply must be looked after. A milch cow must have plenty of water. She can not wait until she is driven up at night. The water is a necessary constituent of the milk, and she must be watered during the time the milk is being manufactured. If deprived of water during the warm days her supply of milk will fall off.

—One who has tried that burning scraps of old rubber, rubber boots or shoes, upon a pin of coals that is circulated among the trees of an orchard will cause all insects to depart. This is a very simple means, but we should know that they would return after a little time. The claim was that there was a sort of constancy to the smoke that adheres to leaves, blossoms, and even the trunks of trees, which, being repellent to insects, drives them away, and holds it virtue for some time. If this is a reliable remedy it will be convenient to repeat rose-hips during their period of ripeness.

THE LOCO WEED.

How to Treat Animals Suffering from Its Dangerous Effects.

The loco or "crazy" weed, about which ranchmen give various and sometimes conflicting statements, is the subject of a paper by Prof. Sayre, of the Kansas State University, and incorporated in a report of the State Board of Agriculture. According to the professor there are two plants known as the crazy weed common in Kansas, Colorado and New Mexico, the astragalus and oxytropis, both belonging to the natural order of leguminosae. Both are attractive plants, and keep their color all winter. The astragalus grows on high ground, it blooms about June, bearing a bright-hued flower; there are a great many stalks proceeding from the base. These stalks are compressed, reclining towards the base and crooked and recurved above, with soft, silky pubescence. The leaflets, usually in pairs except the upper one (composed of from two to twenty pairs), are somewhat densely clothed with soft, silky hairs, more woolly on the under side. The flower stalk is usually longer than the leaf stalks, asked below, bearing a rather thick spike of flowers.

The following is a summary of the effect of loco, based on personal inquiry among ranchmen, by Prof. Sayre: The animal unaccustomed to the weed will not touch it as long as good feed is to be had, but after once partaking of it—driven to it in early spring by the want of green vegetation—soon comes to prefer it to any other food, and finally refuses any other, leaves the herd and wildly searches for loco. The first effect upon the animal is hallucination. When led or ridden up to some trifling obstruction, such as a bar or a rope lying in the road, he stops short, and if urged on leaps over it as if it were a rail fence four feet high. Seemingly the optic nerve is affected; all sense of distance and dimension seems to be lost; a barn near at hand is to him afar off, and one a mile away near by. He will go headlong against a barn or a rock, or over precipices, if he were totally blind. The animal will, perhaps, let one get close to him, then suddenly and wildly run away at full speed and as suddenly stop, turn around, and if may be, come right back, stop short, stare, and act like a mad dog.

A treatment recommended by Dr. Hardling and given by the Professor for a loco animal is as follows: "Pulverized extract belladonna, 10 grs; corrosive sublimate, 1 to 1 1/2 grs; Iodoform, 1 oz; glycerine, q. s. Mix. Make a thin paste, and give a tablespoonful. The belladonna and mercury may be increased according to the severity of the symptoms. Opium combined with the belladonna might be advantageous at the beginning of the disease. Mild and non-irritating articles of food only should be given, such as oil cake, etc." A veterinarian in Garden City recommended the application of a blister behind the ear. This might be good, as also any counter-irritant application along the spine, adds Prof. Sayre.—N. Y. World.

POULTRY PARASITES.

Helpful Hints in Relation to the Various Lice Infesting Poultry-Houses.

The chief of the lice is the red mite, which is a very small parasite. Unless very close examination is made, this little fellow will escape observation. Many persons suppose that the birds are free from his depredations because he is so diminutive as to escape notice, but give him a few days' grace, and he and his mate will multiply so rapidly that countless millions will be present, and in every crack and crevice. It will be only necessary to pluck a white rug or the walls of the poultry house, or even touch any part with the hand, to find out if they are there. They do more damage at night than during the day, and as their small size enables them to hide almost anywhere, the best way to destroy them is to make a thin, hot whitewash, add a tablespoonful of strong liquid carbolic acid to each gallon of whitewash, and, with a watering can, sprinkle (or pour, if necessary) it into every portion of the poultry house, and then follow with a swab or brush. Let me assure you that these insects will be exterminated.

The tick louse is a large fellow, nearly one-eighth of an inch in length, dark in color with legs near the head. He prefers the heads of chicks, and sticks close to his victim. He does not like grease, and a mixture of lard three parts, crude petroleum one part, and carbolic acid one-tenth part, rubbed on the head, around the vent, with a drop under the throat, and a good dusting of Persian insect powder is more than his constitution will endure, and he quickly succumbs or leaves.

5. No packing material is necessary. Simply lay them on racks or shelves; though, if preferred, they may be packed in boxes, in dry oats, and the boxes turned.

6. Solutions, grossing the eggs, egg-preserving preparations, etc., are unnecessary, as some of them injure the appearance of the eggs.

7. Wash every egg clean before placing it with the others.

If the above rules are followed there will be no differences between eggs so preserved and those that are fresh. No person can succeed in preserving eggs who buys them from all sources, and who does not know just when, every egg was laid, and it is on that point that so many failures occur.

In the new process the lignin is simply dissolved out, and the snowy films of the ramie and the tawny threads of the sugar cane are coaxed out as easily as the infant kitten to its milk.—Atlanta Constitution.

Give the Boys a Coat.

Let your boy own a coat. Let it be a blooded one if you can afford it—at least let it have a good shir. Encourage the boy to keep it in good condition and handsome in appearance, thus getting him accustomed to habits of care which will stand him in good stead when he comes to handle other kinds of stock. Encourage him to develop his stock in every way except one—and that is in speed competitions.

Whatever you do keep him out of the fair ground trot or pace, and touch him that he is not to learn how much value a good horse can be to a jockey, but of how much use it can be to a man. Nine out of ten farmers' boys who get into the speed-ring are worsted by its associations and tendencies, and we can not close the chapter without urging every father to keep his boy out of it.—Kansas Farmer.

It is estimated at the Treasury Department that there has been a decrease of $11,500,000 in the public debt since Sept. 1st.

The Owenton Inquirer is of the opinion that figures won't lie, so of course there's no room for them on the Republican stamp in this campaign.

The Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers has just issued a circular declaring the Burlington strike not ended, and urging the members not to go to work.

The picture of the sacrificial lamb, Levi P. Morton, looks like that of a good old Methodist preacher, who is very fond of chicken, but never gets enough only while visiting the brethren.

The Chinese government will regulate by refusing our coal oil in as much as we refuse to Americanize the Chinese. The Standard Oil Co. can easier afford to lessen its sales than the U. S. can to increase the number of Chinese in this country.

Oppressed, persecuted, of the efforts of the St. Louis Globe-Democrat that every time a big Democratic orator makes a speech, the G. D. claims that the speech helps the Republican party. Why not stereotype your editorials, making a mortise to change the name of the speaker, and tune of your paragraph?

Joseph Medill, editor of the Chicago Tribune, will retire, having purchased a villa near Florence, Italy, where with his family he intends to spend the remainder of his life. Mr. Patterson, managing editor, will go to London as chief of the European bureau, and will be succeeded by Joseph Wheelock, editor of the Pioneer Press, at St. Paul, Minn.

The reception to the Hon. Henry Watterson Monday evening last, at Liederkranz Hall, was a fitting expression of respect and esteem of the citizens of Louisville for one of the foremost men in American politics. Mr. Watterson has just returned from the East and Northwest, where he has been doing excellent service for the Democratic cause. The demonstration was on an extensive scale. The thirteen Democratic clubs were out in the torch light procession as well as several bands of music. Henry is a big man at home, as well as abroad.

Pittsburg and Philadelphia have been assessed half a million dollars to be used in the election of Harrison and Morton. The Philadelphia Record says: "The people of the United States are beginning to understand the real nature of the contest. The evident drift of opinion is in favor of tax reduction on the lines indicated by President Cleveland's message." The Republican party has to raise money with which to buy the votes they used to control by their sophistry. Yes, verily. The colored voter is gradually but surely beginning to see that their Republican friends have no use for him after his vote is cast.

Morton's letter formally accepting the nomination for Vice-President on the Republican ticket has been published. He declares that he is an unwavering friend of the protective system, and says that between the systems of the two parties, to the laboring man it is that of narrowing channels, and so hand and expanding opportunities for the colored race, for employment inevitably reduces the wages of all working men. The proof of pudding is in the eating, and we would like for the g. o. p. to explain why the poor laborer is in his present condition under the present protective system. If protection will accomplish so much good, "why is it thus?"

The Chicago News says the great advance in the price of flour, which has followed close upon the heels of the advancing price of wheat, is to be followed in turn by dearer loaves of bread. Many bakers insist that they must charge 7 cents a loaf hereafter for the loaf which is now selling for 5 cents. This is serious news for many people. Dear bread is a national calamity. The profits which come out of the life-sustaining loaf between the farmer and the consumer are many and great. It is only necessary to make bread unreasonably dear in order to bring on a revolution. History teaches this unmitigably. The profit-eaters world do well to remember this.

A Harrison organ thinks it's a most remarkable thing that men, Harrison should have been making speeches for three months without having laid himself open once to his watchful opponents." There's nothing very strange or remarkable about that fact when it is considered that during the three months of speech making he has said nothing that would warrant criticism, having advanced no new ideas, but to the contrary has followed in the plain old track which have been worn and trodden upon until they are hardly noticeable. In all of his speeches he so frames them that they can not be taken in a sense to place him as a target, nor is it at all probable that he will "lay himself open once to his watchful opponents."

Miss Susan Winter, of Montauk, is engaged to be married to a young man named Spring. The editor of her town paper, in a recent issue, mentioned something about "Winter lingering in the lap of Spring," and has been sued for libel by the sensitive and considerate young lady.

A paper has been written on "How to tell a woman's age." The information is all right, and to know how to tell her age would be knowledge, but who would be unto the man who undertakes to impart this knowledge. His days would be few and his troubles many indeed.

A New York lawyer takes the dumplings for being the meanest man in the State. After defrauding his clients, mostly women and orphans, out of $25,000, he stole $10,000 from his wife and fled to Canada.

TWO MORE RAILROADS

Is What an Enterprising Citizen Thinks is the Need of the Day.

In conversation with a gentleman well posted as to the financial condition of our county, one who has dined on the proposition that Mr. Neal has already submitted to the county, and any other that may hereafter be submitted, he expressed his positive conviction that our county will afford to vote two subsidies to different corporations, from the fact, as he believes, more people will be interested.

He says there are in round numbers $8,000,000 worth of taxable property in the county. A levy of 30 cents on each $100 will amount to $21,000 $45,000, which is the total amount asked by any two of the three companies which have been before the people, at 5 per cent will amount to $22,500—leaving a margin of $15,000 to pay Sheriff's commissions, &c. He says this is not all. Lawyers tell us, he says, that railroads are taxable, and if so, we will have about 60 miles of railroad by these propositions—that is if the lines run at right angles through the country, with Hopkinsville as the center. That number of miles valued at $22,500 per mile, the fixed value of the L. & N., will add to the taxable valuation about $1,500,000. This will make the total valuation of taxable property in the county $49,500,000. He further says that the L. & N. is now worth in round figures $1,000,000 or 31 miles at $22,500 per mile, making $10,500,000. He thinks that with 60 miles more railroad by the completion of two different lines, the natural increase of population will run the amount of taxable property up to another million, making within two years about $12,000,000 of taxable property in the county.

The Republican party has to raise money with which to buy the votes they used to control by their sophistry.

THE FIRST DAY.

A BIG CROWD PRESENT AT THE FAIR WHO ENJOY THE SPLENDID RACES.

A Good Time All Round.

The opening day of the second meeting of the Christian County Driving Park was everything that could have been reasonably desired, and was more than the most sanguine expected. Wednesday, the first day, was the best first day that any fair, says an officer of the Association, has ever had, both in attendance and number of fine horses. There was a very large number of ladies present, and the day was a big one in every sense of the term.

The races in the afternoon were the chief attractions and drew many to the grounds who did not attend in the morning. The track was in tip-top condition and the temperature of the atmosphere was just at the right degree. The chariot race was the first to take place, at 1:30 two chariots took places on the track and the drivers started their steeds for a half mile dash. Four grays were driven to one chariot and four sorrels to the other. The grays took the lead at the start but the sorrels were soon moving head to head with them and in a few seconds took the lead. The driver of the grays then urged his animals to their fullest speed and dashed ahead coming out the winner. The ribbons were in the hands of skillful drivers and the race was highly enjoyed.

THE FIRST RACE.

Was a half a mile dash for all ages. The starters were J. H. McFee's Miss McFee; J. R. Neighter's Nannie G.; J. J. Iya Alvarap; W. H. Foster's Atabian, and H. E. Brodway's Vattell. The bay Alvarap took the lead at the start and led by several lengths until the quarter stake was reached when she was lapped by Vattell, the other three being far behind. All interest in the race was centered on the two leading animals. The race was between Alvarap and Vattell. Vattell was making splendid time but the rider of Alvarap urged forward and won the race 15 to 5. Vattell was the favorite before the start and was $5.00.

SECOND RACE—PURSE $200.

There were but two starters in this mile heat; for 2 year-olds. In the first heat; for 2 year-olds. In the second heat, Red Clover, and Withers' Bay Lake Boy. Red Clover won easily by 10 to 8.

2:50 TROT—PURSE $200.

It was between Senator Updegraff, W. E. Iglesias' boy Cleveland, and Tandy Bro's boy Charley made the start, Charley in the lead which held to the end, winning the heat in 2:40. Charley also got the lead in the second heat, but the Senator finally got the lead, and won the heat in 2:43. That third heat was very interesting between the Senator and Charley, but Senator came in ahead in 2:43. In the fourth heat the Senator came in ahead at 2:45.

THREE QUARTER DASH.

In this race for a purse of $65 W. H. Foster's Planter, H. K. Dent's False Alarm, W. H. Herriman's Little F., and R. E. Broadway's Fraud made the start. Won by Little F. by several lengths. Time 1:49.

This wound up the sport for the day.

The Fair Ball.

This indispensable feature of entertainment has long been the custom every fall during the fair. The previous balls have always been given on Friday night but this time the cessation of tobacco culture next year. Hon. James A. McKenzie, the gifted orator of Kentucky, and a leading farmer of Christian county, has accepted the invitation to address the meeting on the present situation and general agricultural interests. Farmers of Christian county whose natural scenery will by that time be painted in the varied hues of autumn. Yours & C.

A GRAND RALLY FOR THE FARMERS.

Hon. James A. McKenzie Addressed the Agriculturalists at Clarksville Oct. 11.

It has been decided to call a meeting of the farmers in Clarksville on Thursday, Oct. 11, to take active steps for carrying out the plan adopted by the Tobacco Congress looking to the cessation of tobacco culture next year.

Hon. James A. McKenzie, the gifted orator of Kentucky, and a leading farmer of Christian county, has accepted the invitation to address the meeting on the present situation and general agricultural interests. Farmers of Christian county are invited to attend. Let us have a grand rally and get fully in the spirit of the important movement.

AN ESCAPED CONVICT.

AFTER THREE YEARS FINDS HIS WAY TO HOPKINSVILLE, AND

Ellis Into the Hands of the Police.

Some of our readers have not forgotten an attempt that was made about three years ago to rob the house of a Mr. Garrett, who lives a short distance from Clarksville. It will also be remembered that Mr. Garrett defended his house and shot and killed one of the would-be-robbers, and that the second made his escape, but was afterwards caught, tried and sentenced to the penitentiary at Nashville. His term was for fifteen years. He remained in the penitentiary about eight or ten days when he made his escape, and has been at large ever since. He had spent most of his time in different places, but since he got out, he has been at the Fair at Dawson, got on the train at Crofton and got off when the train stopped at the tank Tuesday evening. Wednesday evening Chief Biggerstaff told a representative of this paper that he expected to get him before Thursday morning, as he was confident he was in hiding in the city. Sure enough yesterday morning a little before 7 o'clock the Chief and two of his assistants nabbed him and put him in jail. He was sent to the authorities at Nashville yesterday evening.

Now that he is in jail, he will be held for trial.

Dr. E. B. Dagg, B. F. Eager and R. R. Donaldson spoke on the question:

What do we most need in our church?

Special attention was called to our need of a more general study of God's word combined with Christian activity.

Dr. Eager made an address on the subject:

What are Southern Baptists doing for the cause of missions?

He made it very evident by statistics that we are falling far below our ability and very short of the calls of Divine Providence. J. U. Spurlock called attention to some facts that show very plainly God's hand in the management of our mission.

H. L. Donaldson read an essay on Individual Responsibility in Christian work.

A large congregation was present on Sunday morning at the discussion of Sabbath School work by J. W. Boyd, J. U. Spurlock, J. Hopkins and C. H. Hanbury, and sermon by J. F. Dagg.

The Circle adjourned to meet in Hopkinsville at 10 o'clock, on Saturday morning, Dec. 29th.

The Virginia Exposition.

It should be understood in the start that the Exposition at Richmond has not failed into the rut of other shows bearing the same appellation. It possesses great novelty attractions in addition to the exhibition of agriculture, forestry, minerals, tobacco, mechanics and the fine arts of the Virginians.
